REMARKS OF ASHLEY ANDREWS, MISS. RODEO AMERICA

It is an honor and privilege to be with you today. As I look out I see that we all have something very important in common, we all have a great love and passion for the people and places in our great state of North Dakota. We all want to see our state grow and people to have the best life here possible, and we all want to be the best representatives for the people in this state.

Growing up in Southwest North Dakota I was probably a typical high school kid. I figured that I would go to college at the University of Mary and I would probably end up leaving the state because "the grass is greener on the other side". In all my travels as Miss. Rodeo North Dakota I can tell you I have been all across the country and not yet have I been a place that even comes close to comparing to our state of North Dakota.

When I finish my reign I plan to come back to the University and come back to Southwest North Dakota and start a family and raise my kids with the same values that I was raised with, because North Dakotans have the epitome of the values of hard work, dedication, honesty, integrity, and being great genuine people. There are no people like the people here in North Dakota, that are willing to give you the shirt off their back in your time of need, which I experienced last year.

I want to leave you today with an important quote that is near and dear to my heart and I hope will be to yours also. I am also going to leave you with a speech that I gave in Las Vegas at the Miss. Rodeo America pageant that helped me win the speech category and also the title of "Miss. Rodeo America".

The quote is "The value of a person is not measured on an applause meter, nor in the eyes of others, but it's measured in the heart and mind of God."

When you think of California, what do you think of? Clear sandy beaches with hot bay watch babes, running around, saving lives in the endless deep blue ocean? Or how about Wisconsin...providing you with enough cheese to leave you in the bathroom for hours. But how about North Dakota?? Did you draw a blank, or did you shiver with cold. Which leaves me with one word...snow.

North Dakota isn't for the faint of heart, its sometimes 50 below winters make its citizens as tough as nails. Some even grow to enjoy shoveling snow, scraping car windows, and occasionally getting snowed in.

But you must admit, without snow, we'd be without so many things; like snowmobiles, snow shoes, snow shovels, snow skis, snow men, snow angels and snow bunnies. We would even be without a North Dakotans favorite piece of advice, "Never eat yellow snow."

Maybe it's because of the snow and cold weather that North Dakota is sparsely populated, and made up of many small towns which make it normal to see your best friend driving a tractor down main street, or make your idea of going out to lunch, driving to the auction barn on sale day.

And there is no doubt that North Dakota's harsh weather played a part in creating some of the toughest rodeo cowboys of our time, like world champion bareback rider Wayne Herman, or world champion saddle bronc riders Brad Gjermundson and Alvin Nelson. They say that North Dakota can grow tough bareback and saddle bronc riders because no one wants to get bucked off here and have to walk home in this weather!

Now don't let the cold scare you, there is much more to North Dakota than cold and snow, because North Dakotans are some of the most kind, outgoing, hard working and honest people you will ever meet. I guess I'll let you in on a little secret. We actually use the cold weather as a scare tactic, because if everyone knew just how great North Dakota really was, they would all want to pack up and move here tomorrow.

So to you, North Dakota might just mean snow, but to me, North Dakota is the place where the grass grows lush, green and stirrup high, and the water runs cool, clear and deep. And I know when I make my last inevitable ride, and my final judge tells me my entry fees have been paid, I'll be in my new home, just like my home, here in North Dakota.

MOTION

REP. BERG MOVED that the remarks of Ashley Andrews be printed in the Journal, which motion prevailed.
