

My name is Mike Fladeland. I'm a Bismarck resident and a member of the Board of Trustees of the Veterans Memorial Public Library (VMPL). I oppose HB 1205 for several reasons, including references to "maintaining or promoting certain books," pertaining to certain subjects listed under Section 2. However, my primary objection is to censorship of the collections of the state's public libraries.

The VMPL has a Collection Development Policy that includes sections addressing Principles of Selection and Reconsideration of Library Materials. As stated in our Principles, "The Library makes available, as the budget allows, a wide range of ideas and viewpoints in a variety of formats in support of an informed citizenry. It supports the individual choice and judgment of library users in seeking information and upholds the freedom of users to read, view, and listen, even though the content may be controversial, unorthodox, or unacceptable to others."

The Reconsideration section provides for "a process whereby opinions and/or complaints from Burleigh County citizens or individuals with current, non-resident Library cards regarding materials selection can be voiced," and acted upon.

That's how the VMPL approaches censorship as well as, more specifically, "book banning." On a broader level, the American Library Association affirms in the Library Bill of Rights, that "Libraries should challenge censorship in the fulfillment of their responsibility to provide information and enlightenment." Further, the Association, in a Freedom to Read Statement, states "The freedom to read is essential to our democracy."

A recent article in the New Yorker magazine is entitled, "What are we Protecting Children from by Banning Books?," The author, Katy Waldman, sums up her article by stating, "A recent wave of bans comes as many Republicans, in their opposition to gun control, climate science, food stamps, public education, and other social services, work assiduously to render the lives of American children as unchildlike as possible. A number of grownups apparently feel emboldened to spend their lives playing peekaboo with reality. Their kids may not have that luxury."

Ms. Waldera accurately states there is a "wave of bans" nationwide this year in many states, including Texas, Florida, and North Dakota. It appears our legislators are bowing to a minority of vocal citizens who want to limit what is available for the majority of responsible citizens to read or observe. While we are concerned about the welfare of our children, this is not the solution to what really is not a problem in our state's libraries. This bill represents an insidious and dangerous attempt to limit the people's freedom of choice, while hiding behind the guise of "protecting our children."
